Against the flow: An Action Agenda to engage urban stakeholders in water resources management

Workshop: 16 November 2017 • 15h30-17h00 in Room 3

Workshop Description

What actions need to be taken today in cities to sustain and protect water resources across basins?

IWA is drafting a Basin Action Agenda to raise awareness and catalyse action among utilities, cities and their industries to work with water resource managers to secure water supply, protect water quality and prepare for extreme events.

Join the workshop to share experiences and exchange knowledge on how cities, utilities and industries can play a key role in securing water resources and their efficient use for the benefit of all water users across a catchment.

Your feedback is essential to ensure that the Basin Action Agenda becomes a powerful tool in activating urban water stewards. We can't do it without you!

* This workshop is part of a series at IWA events in developing the Action Agenda, to be finalised for the 2018 IWA World Water Congress in Tokyo.
